TEAK OUTDOOR FURNITURE CARE AND MAINTENANCE

Teak is naturally hard-wearing and long lasting; as Teak has the highest natural oil content of all hardwoods we do not advise the application of Teak Oil.

Do not be alarmed if small cracks appear in the end-grain of timbers as they are perfectly natural, and you need not worry - as the moisture in the atmosphere rises the timber will return to normal. You may also see white patterns appear on the teak - these are simply calcium deposits and are an intrinsic element of Teak - they do not affect the durability, performance or life expectancy of the item.

HOW TO CARE FOR TEAK GARDEN FURNITURE

It is important that stains and spillages on the wood are absorbed with kitchen paper as soon as they occur and are then washed away with soapy water. General grime accumulates on furniture outside and this should be washed away with a light soapy detergent. Any residual marks may be removed with a little light sanding using very fine sandpaper – always following the grain of the wood.

Extending tables and folding chairs should be regularly opened and closed to prevent moving parts seizing up - the application of a little lubricant on a cloth passed over the runners will help to smooth the process.
